One of the most significant showcases focused on Antique American Indian, Pre-Columbian, and Spanish Colonial, as well as contemporary American Indian, and Latin American art, the Marin Show: Art of the Americas brings together the passion of the country's top dealers and artists, with collectors, and those interested in exploring the rich cultures of the Americas. Exhibited art includes jewelry, textiles, baskets, pottery, beadwork, sculpture, photography, paintings, books, and more, offering quality material for first time buyers and seasoned collectors.

SPECIAL EXHIBIT

The 2015 Marin Show will feature a special exhibit and symposium titled "Yesterday and Today" produced by the California Indian Basketweavers' Association (CIBA) in association with the California Academy of Sciences. A major traveling exhibition of California Indian basketry, "Yesterday and Today" will compare 150 historic - seldom displayed - California Indian baskets from the Collection of the California Academy of Sciences with 45 contemporary baskets created by CIBA Master Weavers, demonstrating that California Indian basketry is the finest art ever produced in our state.

CIBA artists will be present with interactive experiences including plant fiber preparation -- "what goes before the basket," -- as well as opportunities for direct interaction with "Contemporary Weavers at Work." Special "Hands-On Basketry Activities" will engage young show visitors and their families, eager to learn firsthand about the basketry traditions of California Indians.

About KR Martindale Show Management

For over three decades, Kim Martindale has produced many of the country's most prestigious and successful historic art shows. In addition, since 1994, he's brought the same professionalism and enthusiasm to a series of contemporary fine art shows most notably, The Los Angeles Art Show.
